

Plant-it For The Planet: Inspiring Kids to Be the Next Generation Of Budding Gardeners In Honour of Earth Day, April 22nd, 2010

Toronto, ON – March 29, 2010: Children are the most natural helpers in the garden. After all, gardening gives them a great excuse to have fun in the dirt. But more importantly, gardening is a great way to educate children about the importance of keeping green and saving the environment. That's why Floral Marketing Solutions has developed the perfect kit to get kids interested in gardening: The Budding Gardener.

Floral Marketing Solutions' mission is to increase environmental awareness and educate the young. With this in mind the company is proud to announce its Plant-It for the Planet Earth Day Campaign: an initiative focused on creating the next generation of Budding Gardeners, both indoor and out, in as many Canadian homes as possible.

Floral Marketing Solutions' first step as part of this campaign is to put as many of The Budding Gardener kits as possible in the hands of children. These kits are a fun and educational introduction to organic gardening for kids and include everything they need to start their own indoor garden including a biodegradable pot and saucer, seeds, soil, and lots of exciting accessories. Kids will also have access to an interactive website www.forkids.ca/buddinggardener where they can log-in to their own personal account, keep track of their growing results and participate in various learning activities.

To deliver The Budding Gardener kits, Floral Marketing Solutions is teaming up with a number of schools across the country. While learning about organic gardening, conservation, and the environment, these students will also be growing the perfect gifts for Mother's Day.
